

High Country Energy Seeks New Board Member Candidates!

Dodge - Olmsted - Mower
Counties, Minnesota

Are you interested in contributing to the development of the High Country Energy wind project? Perhaps joining High Country Energy's Member Advisory Board is the right move to make.

If you are (or know of) an investor or participating landowner who wishes to become involved in helping shape this project, please contact one of our field specialists, project developers or any current board member - see the enclosed contact information sheet for details.

You will be provided with a questionnaire and a list of guidelines, and someone from the board will walk you through the process.

We are looking for qualified individuals with a desire to see a collaborative community wind energy project developed in our area. Our board meets with National Wind each month to review project progress and plans. Board members are encouraged to offer the input and suggestions, providing local counsel on the issues that matter to our community.

The local advisory board is a key component to High Country Energy's Community Development approach. It consists of investors and participating landowners from our project areas who work side by side with our developer, National Wind, to provide knowledge of area farming practices, land use, community issues and the like. This group provides a link to the people and issues of the project area, and represents the 'voice of the community' on the project development team. One great example of this in practice is our land lease agreement, on which the board worked closely with National Wind to make significant improvements to make it more competitive and landowner-friendly.

Our member advisory board currently consists of eight members, with one open seat. We will be electing new members from our community to fill this open seat, as well as up to three current seats which are up for reelection this year. One or more of these seats may be elected at our upcoming annual members meeting on the evening of June 23rd.
